To Whom It May Concern

Re: Speedway Construction Limited – Dublin Airport Terminal 2

As part of the €395 m project to construct the new Terminal 2 at Dublin Airport, Alandale Logistics was appointed in September 2007 by Dublin Airport Authority as Trade Contractor for the Logistics and General Builders Works.

The Terminal 2 Project was the first in Ireland to employ the services of a Logistics Contractor and it was also the first time that Alandale Logistics Limited had undertaken work in Ireland. As such the success of our operations was in part dependant on our ability to form partnerships with local suppliers and subcontractors who both knew the local market and who could provide a quality service.

From the initial stages of our involvement on the T2 Project we established a close working relationship with Speedway Construction Limited who already had an established presence on the site. From initially supplying a small amount of labour, Speedway Construction Limited were eventually responsible for the supply of all our labour requirements of 100 men at peak, from general labourers, skilled craftsmen and plant operators in addition to supply of plant and equipment, occasional subcontract works and other ancillary services that are an integral part of a logistical services contract.

Throughout their involvement on the T2 Project Speedway Construction Limited proved themselves to be a partner to be relied upon, throughout the complex construction process to the final handover of the new Terminal. As the sole provider of manpower to Alandale Logistics Limited, they continually strove to arrive at solutions to budget and time constraints, helping to meet the functional, commercial, quality, safety and operational goals of one of the largest construction projects undertaken in Ireland.

The Directors of Speedway Construct Limited took a very hands-on approach and were involved in the day to day operations on site, always making themselves available to discuss any particular operational requirements and provide advice when needed.

I therefore have no hesitation in recommending the services of Speedway Construction Limited and would be happy to provide further information on request.

Yours Sincerely,

Kieran Farrell
Director
